

THE BARRE DAILY TIMES

WEDNESDAY, MARCH 16, 1910.

Entered at the post office at Barre as second-class matter.

Published every week-day afternoon. Subscriptions: One year, $3.00; one month, 25 cents; single copy, 1 cent. Frank E. Langley, Publisher.

The average daily circulation of the Barre Daily Times for the week ending Saturday was copies, the largest paid circulation of any daily paper in this section.

For a college which likes to be in the swim, 'tis strange for Harvard to cut out swimming from the list of college sports.

Ex-Governor Stewart, aged 85, and ex-Governor McCullough, aged 75, are cutting dices through Europe. Those gay young blades!

There ought to be sufficient public sentiment in Kansas City to prevent the intended quashing of the charges in the Cuddey-Lillis affair. There seems to be enough public opinion to shame both the men, and perhaps the woman, in the case.

Among the distinctive social events of the season should be enumerated the reception given in West Rupert yesterday in honor of Mrs. Hannah Hadaway, aged 101 years. Mrs. Hadaway was active in receiving the guests. Two sisters, aged 99 and 91, respectively, were detained from attending. Nevertheless, it was a notable event.

There is some advantage for being off the main line of a railroad. We know it when we read that fourteen tramps were "put up" at the Concord, N. H., police station last Monday night. Concord catches the Boston-Montreal driftwood of humanity as much as any city on the route between the two terminal points mentioned.

In these days of big things, we are constantly forced to change our concepts. Now we are called upon to contemplate a possible banking institution in New York City with capital of $100,000,000 and deposits of $300,000,000. This will be the result if the National City and the National Bank of Commerce consolidated.

The Democrats may be said to be holding their own; they carried the village of Bennington yesterday. Bennington and Burlington insist in drawing strict party lines for local administration—perhaps the only communities in the state which cling to the old idea that a man is a better administrator of village business because he is either a Republican or a Democrat.

Now is the time when the railroads will need to take extra precautions against wrecks, since the action of the frost in leaving the ground will weaken the roadbed and will be likely to cause spreading rails. The freight wreck on the Boston & Maine railroad at Concord and the passenger train wreck on the N. Y. N. H. & H. R. R. at Springfield, Mass., yesterday constitute sufficient warning.

When a thoroughly notorious gambler dies in New York, he gets more newspaper space than a thoroughly good man, which must indicate that the thoroughly good men are so common that their "news value" to the New York publishers is rated very low. That is the hopeful view, in spite of the printed statement recently made by someone that the United States is a nation of gamblers.

Only forty registered for the first day of "farmers' week" at the Massachusetts state agricultural college, but many more are expected before the session ends. Several hundred were registered at the recent session at the university of Vermont, showing that Vermont farmers are perhaps more alive to progressive ideas than are the farmers of Massachusetts. At least, the Vermont farmers have shown a desire to be taught.

AN INTERESTING ANALOGY.

In naming Sherman E. Burroughs of Manchester for governor of New Hampshire, the Concord Monitor presented as his qualifications for the office these features: a young Republican of the best type, of stainless reputation, public and private, favorably known throughout the state of his birth and education, the state where he has taken high rank in his profession, the state which he has served so faithfully in important offices. Had the description been written particularly to suit his case, Frederick G. Fleetwood of Morrisville, candidate for governor of Vermont, could not have been more closely portrayed than in those words, except that he concluded his education in Harvard university. In fact, it is a very interesting analogy and worth watching, to see how it will end.

VERMONT'S FEEBLE POLITICAL VOICE.

Speaker Cannon will not strengthen himself in New England by "punishing" Congressman Foster. Such action might result in a protest from Vermont that would be heard even farther than Washington.—Montpelier Journal.

The presiding genius of the House won't lose any sleep over whatever "protest" Vermont can make against punishing Foster for insubordination. In fact, such an idea is likely to make him tilt his cigar at an even more pious angle and smite his thighs with great gloe. Vermont, little Vermont, threatening me! Well, sakes alive, what impudence!

Vermont's "protest," we fear, would not even carry to Washington, let alone having effect on the impervious epidermis of this Caesar in the chair. Vermont can rank and tear as much as it has a mind to do, yet Speaker Cannon will brush it aside like a middle-class insect pest come to disturb his equanimity. If Speaker Cannon selects Foster for the chairmanship of the House committee on foreign relations, it will be because he just wants to, regardless of any other considerations, threats from Vermont or what-not. Vermont is powerless meanwhile.

Starting a small account with us now and gradually adding to it is better than waiting until you have a large sum to deposit. You are making sure of the small amounts and four per cent interest is adding to the total all the while. If you have no money in the bank, this is a good time to begin.

Current Comment

Suggests a Compromise.

Why not let Mead have the nomination for governor and Fleetwood for lieutenant governor, then the ambitions of both would be realized after the coming of recent year politics. Fleetwood is a young man and two years passes away soon to a busy man like him.—Windsor Journal.

Value of Automobiles to Hotels.

Notice how the automobile tourist record shows up at Hale's Tavern in Wells River, as printed elsewhere in this paper. Jerome F. Hale, formerly of Richmond, and one of the best known hotel men in New England, can tell any inquiring St. Albans man what the better-day automobile tourist business means to an up-to-date hotel.—St. Albans Messenger.

Pecuniary Financing.

Among the recent state news items is the reported resignation of Rev. George Frederick Wells, research secretary of the Vermont interdenominational committee, who has done a work of much importance throughout the state in unifying discordant elements and organizing scattered ecclesiastical forces into working order under a compromise form of church polity. He has done much to educate the people in the direction of more liberal thought and away from bigotry and hidebound sectarianism. The interdenominational committee, composed as it is of men from all the leading protestant sects, stands for modern methods as opposed to medieval ways of church administration; it believes in saving the people rather than the denomination. But what must be thought of the pecuniary financing of such an enterprise as this, when the secretary is obliged to report that only $300 was subscribed for the work and that every dollar of that amount was used for necessary expenses, leaving not a penny for his salary. Did the commission expect that the ravens were going to feed this modern Elijah?—Rutland Herald.

RANDOLPH.

Sunday School Convention Closed Helpful Session This Forenoon.

The West Orange Sunday School association opened its first session yesterday afternoon in the Methodist church, with a small attendance. Rev. P. A. Wells of Randolph Center, president of the association, conducted the services. The afternoon speakers were unable to be present and this morning's program was substituted. Rev. D. H. Strong of Williamstown gave an address upon "Temperance Teaching in the Sunday School." He said the proper way to teach temperance was to teach it naturally, like other virtues, and to make the practical teaching of temperance in our schools a success. All who teach must be alive to the principles of temperance. An occasional Sunday devoted to that subject, arranged systematically and in connection with some little text book, was recommended. "Missions in the Sunday School" was the subject of an address by Miss Nellie H. Nutting of Randolph Center. This was an urgent appeal for missionary intelligence in the Sunday school, and the plan of spending one quarter of the year in the study of missions and their methods would prove a power for good in all churches. Miss Nutting said that each Sunday school should expect to send some missionaries. Rev. H. Q. Ward of Brookfield followed with "The Pastor's Place in the Sunday School." He said the Sunday school needs a pastor more than the church. The church might get along without a pastor. The pastor ought to know every class in Sunday school and should co-operate with the superintendent in all the work. The mission of the Sunday school is to train people for church membership and he judged it more important than any other society connected with the church. The pastor is not called to play golf with the girls, but to look after all who are connected with the school.

The following nominations committee was appointed by the president, L. J. Harrington, Rev. J. Wallace Chesboro, Rev. J. W. Hamilton, and a committee on resolutions was appointed, with O. K. Sprague as chairman.

After the reports of the officers, H. A. Durfee, D. D. spoke, on "A Better Kind of Teaching in Our Sunday Schools," which was the last address of the afternoon.

At the evening session, an address was given by Superintendent H. W. Lewis on "Power," which was aptly illustrated and very interesting. Rev. J. W. Hamilton spoke on "The Grand Objective in All Sunday School Activity," which was shown to be the education and conversion of all members and an increased membership in the churches. Dr. H. A. Durfee, secretary of the Vermont Sunday School association, gave the closing addresses with statistics. The convention closed this morning.

Too Much of a Good Thing.

[A cosmopolitan diner, who has written a book of gastronomic gossip, contended that our manners are too good, and that we English sin from overabundance.—Daily Chronicle.] Let me forget The etiquette To which I've been a slave— With elbows out I'll eat and shout And roundly misbehave; I'd rather be misunderstood Than feel my manners are too good.

I've always thought That profrage ought To be in silence taken; But now, behold, I'm plainly told The notion is mistaken: The lack of sounds I once deemed rude Now means one's manners are too good.

No more shall the Elusive pea My eager fork evade; Henceforward I Will more rely Upon the knife's broad blade; For I should hate, when taking food, To feel my manners were too good. —London Truth.

Union Label on City Printing.

The mayor presented a resolution for the council's consideration that, as all of the job printing houses in the city now have the union label, the city as far as possible divide up the printing among the printers, and that the union label be placed on all of the city's printing. Alderman Ewen inquired if all the printing was not done in the city, and the city clerk replied that it was, there being a few instances years ago when it was let to outside printers, for the reason that they gave a lower bid, but of late it had all been done by the Barre printers.

Alderman Hoyt said that he did not understand just what the mayor's idea was, as all of the printing of any amount that the city had done was let to the lowest bidder, no matter who he is, and so far as the union label was concerned, if the successful bidder put the union label on, the city would probably have no objections. The mayor said that his idea was to have the city recognize the union label by taking this action. The council did not seem inclined to take any action on the resolution, and the mayor stated that he would bring it up again at the next meeting.

SILVERHEELS DEFEATED.

Evangeline Rex Too Fast on the Ice Track.

Concord, N. H., March 16.—Evangeline Rex maintained her title of queen of the New Hampshire snow path yesterday by defeating George L. Theobald's Silverheels over the ice in Pittsfield, in straight heats in 29½, 30, and 29½ seconds, the three fastest heats for the distance on record in New Hampshire. The conditions for the race were ideal, and the contest was witnessed by horsemen from all over the state, who journeyed to Pittsfield on a special train. The race was started about 10 o'clock with Wesley Smith driving the mare and Johnny Marston up behind Silverheels.

In the first heat the horses got away well together and fought it all the way to the finish. Evangeline Rex crossing the finish in 29½ seconds with Silverheels at her neck.

The second heat was in somewhat slower time, the mare finishing in 30 seconds, with Silverheels close up.

There were many vexatious delays before the third heat was started. While scoring, Evangeline Rex got the better of Smith and indulged in a runaway over the ice. When caught, Walter Cox was substituted.

After the word had been given Silverheels either stepped in a hole in the ice or got tangled in her harness on a break and went down, sliding for a quiet long distance. The horse, however, miraculously escaped injury and was not even marked.

Cox pushed the mare all the way down the course and she finished the heat alone in 29½ seconds.

George S. Milton of this city was starting judge, and the judges at the finish were Messrs. Langrey of Manchester, Boyce of Canterbury and Thompson of Hooksett.
